

culturemap

H O U S T O N

Holiday Bling

Oh, the dazzling beauties that caught our eye at the DeVille Fine Jewelry opening on Saturday night. The diamonds, the sapphires, the "DeVille purple" amethysts! And so reasonably priced — at least for those with beaucoup bucks to spend on luscious adornments. The bottom line begins at $600 and goes to . . . well, the sky is the limit, we were told.

Deville Fine jewelry CEO Liz Glanville, who knows a thing or two about carats and karats, welcomed scores of well-heeled friends and serious customers to her swank retail salon on Woodway. You might remember that Glanville ran the Bulgari boutique in the Galleria before going out on her own. Prior to that she was the popular director of the Cartier boutique here.

This is not your typical storefront. DeGeorge Design, Tuttle Development and Wendt Design Group collaborated with Glanville on the space that features a granite "champagne" bar complete with flat-screen TV. The philosophy being that Mama can shop while Daddy enjoys a Scotch and the game on the tube. On this night, the salon was dressed in a virtual forest of calla lilies.

Perusing the gilded offerings were Laura and John Spalding, Isabel and Danny David, Jennifer Roosth, Jim DeGeorge, Lance and Donna DeGeorge, Bryce Kennard, Gracie and Bob Cavnar, Sugar Land City Councilwoman Jacqueline Chaumette and Tom Glanville, the CEO's attentive husband.

--Shelby Hodge
December 22nd, 2009